

Foreign Glass

The unique styles of the pieces shown above hold special fascination for collectors who are attracted to "foreign" insulators. The supply, as well as the variety of colors and shapes, seems to be endless, perhaps explaining the recent upsurge of interest in this area of collecting.

(Upper Left) CD 640, a French design and better known as the "gingerbread boy", can be seen by the thousands in French Morocco. (Upper Right) CD 506 comes from Russia near the Iranian border. (Center) CD 670.1, also of French origin, is nicknamed the "T-bar" (Lower Right) CD 563.1 was found in Belgium and features an unusual 3-ridged skirt.

(See Reference Bibliography for further information)